HOW CAN WE READY OURSELVES FOR A NEW NORMAL OF WORK IN ASIA?

2020 has completely upended Business As Usual across the world.

COVID-19 is not just a healthcare crisis
but an economic crisis for the world.

But despite the great global uncertainties and economic challenges, there are still opportunities for us to keep learning and growing here in Asia.

To support youths with ambition to explore those regional opportunities, National Youth Council and GIC have come together to offer a fully-funded online learning programme for Singaporean/PR IHL students or recent graduates who want to prepare themselves to take on long-haul challenges and explore new possibilities.

HOW MUCH DOES IT COST?

Participants learn for free. The development and delivery costs of this programme has been fully funded by GIC.

WHAT IS THIS PROGRAMME ABOUT?

The content of the 5 sessions are developed collaboratively between GIC & The Thought Collective (TTC). The programme is based on GIC's 5 principles of long-term strategic thinking, infused with TTC's social-emotional and leadership distinctions. The programme will also feature readings and panel sharings about emerging trends in Asia.

WHO IS TEACHING THIS PROGRAMME?

The training will be delivered by Kuik Shiao-Yin of TTC. The occasional panel sharings will feature guest speakers from GIC/NYC's networks.

WHO CAN REGISTER FOR THE PROGRAMME?

All Singaporeans and PR students from IHLs (Institute of Higher Learnings such as local universities, polytechnics and offshore institutes with local campuses). IHL alumni who have graduated not more than 3 years can also register.

Upon completion of this programme, you can build upon this foundation and deepen your understanding of ASEAN, China and India through National Youth Council (NYC)'s Asia-ready Exposure Programme (AEP) grant support or develop your skills through other NYC programmes.
