About SSEAYP

Bringing together more than 300 youths from Southeast Asia and Japan, the Ship for Southeast Asian and Japanese Youth Programme (SSEAYP) provides youths with the unique opportunity to live together on board the Nippon Maru Ship for over 50 days. SSEAYP is an annual programme sponsored by the Japanese Government and supported by the member states of ASEAN. The National Youth Council (NYC), Singapore's national co-ordinating body for youth affairs oversees the programme.

SSEAYP began in January 1974 after Joint Statements were issued between Japan and five ASEAN Member States- Indonesia, Malaysia, Philippines, Singapore and Thailand. They were joined by Brunei Darussalam in 1985, followed by Vietnam in 1996. Both Laos and Myanmar came on board in 1998, with Cambodia as the latest newcomer in 2000. Apart from broadening youths' international outlook, SSEAYP also fosters friendship and greater understanding among youths from Japan and Southeast Asia.
